

JOURNEYS OF ISLANDS HOPPING (9 DAYS, 8 NIGHTS)

If your dream is to grab a ferry and hop from one paradise to the other, then the islands in Thailand is what you're looking for. Thailand is full of jaw-dropping islands, each one with its own unique charms. Whether you want to go diving, hit up party spots, or simply relax on the beach, there will be the perfect island for you in the Land of Smiles. This means that island hopping in Thailand never gets boring. The main caveat to enjoying an island-hopping adventure in Thailand is the planning stage. Deciding where to start and which island you want to visit is not easy. After all, the country has more than 1,000 islands, so there's an infinite number of possible island-hopping itineraries. That's why we made this package – to help anyone looking for an unforgettable island-hopping experience in Thailand but doesn't know where to start.

Day 07: Koh Tao – Full Day Koh Tao & Koh Nangyuan Snorkeling Highlights

Start the trip with a pickup service from your hotel lobby and get driven to Mae Haad Pier where you will meet the crew of Sangthong Tours. After a quick health check, board the modified fishing cutter and chug to the first snorkel spot at Koh Nangyuan off Koh Tao's northwest coast.

Walk on the iconic beach that links the group of three islands of Koh Nangyuan together, and climb up to the viewpoint on the peak of the highest of the three islands. There are a few separate swimming areas with tropical fish, including Japanese Garden as the best snorkeling spot and others where you can just chill out and relax.

Head over to Mango Bay while enjoying a Thai style lunch on board. The bay is named after many mango trees that once grew on this part of Koh Tao in abundance. The magnificent Mango Bay shines with turquoise green and beautiful waters that are full of marine life. Due to shallows off the beach and the sandy seafloor that gives the water a beautiful turquoise green hue, Mango Bay is a go-to destination for snorkel activities.

Continue to Hin Wong Bay located on the east coast of Koh Tao surrounded by big boulders. There are several underwater pinnacles covered in fertile coral, anemones and many kinds of fish that can be seen here. The water here is incredibly clear and you may be lucky enough to see great schools of sardines being chased by hungry trevally in water less than a metre deep.

The next stop is at Aow Luek which is named for its deep, concave shape as well as the depth of the water which makes it good for snorkeling even at very low tide. Expect a stunning scenery with white sandy beach and water varying shades of blue, and Shark Island in the background.

Before returning to the pier, make a stop at Shark Bay where you can swim alongside the many blacktip reef sharks or the sea turtles that come there each day.

Overnight on KOH TAO
